DIRECTOR

Nichola Thompson is a technical writer and manager with a long history of facilities and safety management. She was Safety Officer and Resources Coordinator for Monash Biomedical Imaging, a Monash University research imaging facility. In this role, she coordinated biosafety hazards and hazardous waste removal, chemical inventories, quarantine and animal housing facilities, MRI, CT and Ultrasound equipment, radiation compliance, laser safety and drug licensing. She also coordinated the facility's ISO9001 accreditation.

Nichola currently works as a trainer, consultant and disability support worker. She facilitated NDIS accreditation for one of her major clients and is deeply invested in supporting our most vulnerable community members. This passion and a desire to contribute to her local community inspired Nichola to become involved with Fernlea and its mission. She hopes to support the expansion of many of Fernlea's invaluable community-based projects as part of the Fernlea Board.
